FOREST SERVICE TO OPEN DISTRICT OF SPLENDID RESOURCES

Sangre de Cristo, Ancient Barrier Which Has Isolated Red River Region to Be Surmounted by Modern Highway.

CONSTRUCTION WILL BEGIN IMMEDIATELY

New Road Will Have Maximum Grade of 7 1-2 percent and Will be Easily Negotiable by Motors.

Ever since the settlement of northern New Mexico, the Sangre de Cristo mountain chain has constituted a commercial barrier between the communities of Taos and Colfax counties respectively. The next to impassable roads crossing Sangre de Cristo divide have practically isolated the rich agricultural and mining districts adjacent to Taos, Questa and Red River, from the railroad terminal at El Paso and the other settlements of western Colfax county.

This ancient barrier, the west slope of which comprises the Taos division of the Carson national forest, is now about to be surmounted in at least one point. The forest service engineers with some cooperation from local settlers have already improved the road from Questa to Red River, and now announce the beginning of construction work on the final and most difficult link connecting Red River with the rest of the main route. At this point Colfax county is expected to carry the road down the east slope into Elizabethtown and El Paso.

The construction of the section of road on which the forest service has now begun work is beset with extraordinary difficulties, chief of which is a climb of 1100 feet within a distance of three and one-half miles. The grades in the old road which is to be replaced run as high as 25 percent. Teamsters heretofore descending these grades have been obliged to chop down a pine tree and hitch on an abutment as a drag.

The new road will have a maximum grade of 7 1-2 percent, easily negotiable by motors. There will be three switchbacks, 3,000 feet of retaining wall and 25,000 cubic yards of excavation. Especial attention will be given to easy drainage, so as to avoid damage by freshets. Forest Engineer H. B. Waha, who is now on the ground with twenty-five men and seventeen teams, expects to finish the job within ninety days. The cost of the 2 1/2-mile section will be about $13,000, including $1,200 worth of advance work already contributed by the Red River Road Road association, a volunteer organization of the thirty mining town of Red River.

The completion of the Questa-Elizabethtown road, in addition to its stimulus to local industries, will also constitute an important step toward opening up a scenic route of exceptional beauty and interest. When Taos county improves the Taos-Questa road and Colfax county connects Elizabethtown with the crest of the mountain, motorists will be able to drive between Santa Fe and Raton by way of Taos, Questa and Red River. The historical associations of the Rio Grande valley and the ancient town of Taos, together with the extraordinary scenery of Sangre de Cristo range, beyond a doubt will attract a steadily increasing number of transcontinental tourists to this route.

WEST TEXAS READY FOR A RECORD GRAIN CROP

Grain Men Gather at Amarillo to form Organization for Market Purposes; East New Mexico Crop Fine.

Amarillo, Tex., June 17.—The Panhandle Grain Dealers' association was formed here last night at a meeting attended by grain growers and dealers from all parts of the Texas Panhandle, as well as from eastern New Mexico points. The grain dealers are organizing to handle the greatest wheat crop in the history of the Panhandle. The wheat field of which Amarillo is the trade center, and which includes parts of the eastern New Mexico grain country, contains this year about 600,000 acres on which the wheat crop will be ready for the binder within two or three weeks. Estimating the average yield on this vast acreage at 15 bushels the crop shows at around 12,000,000 bushels, which at the market will be worth from fifteen to eighteen million dollars. The crop is in good shape and this holds good also for the New Mexico country in Curry and Quay counties where the biggest acreage on record has been planted.

SUGGESTS STATE GEOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY

Chief Geographer of U. S. Geological Survey Suggests to Governor It Be Initiated by State University.

Santa Fe, N. M., June 17.—Governor McDonald today received a letter from the chief geographer of the United States geological survey at Washington, in which the official suggests that the governor encourage the organization of a state geographical society, preferably through the instrumentality of the state university and having its central organization and office at that institution.

The geographer writes that similar organizations in other states have proven successful and sources of great usefulness. The governor expects to discuss the matter with President Boyd of the university, who will be in Santa Fe tomorrow to speak to the Santa Fe summer institute.

SELLERS MAROONED IN SAND HILLS FAR AWAY

Colonel Sends Hurry Call for Provisions and Help; Relief Party by Train; Road Race Details Complete.

Missing for twenty-four hours and beginning to be the source of considerable anxiety, Col. D. K. H. Sellers, who left Albuquerque Tuesday for the Ocean to Ocean highway convention at Springville, Ariz., in his car, accompanied by Mrs. Sellers, was located today, marooned high and dry in the desert sand hills 25 miles north of Socorro. Colonel Sellers sent a passing cowboy into Socorro for assistance in the form of automobile parts, food and other necessities to a successful automobile trip. His car broke down with what appears to have been a serious break.

B. Z. Gibbons leaves tonight by train with supplies for the colonel. He also will take along certain automobile parts said to be necessary to the colonel's further progress. Harry Leonard, one of the active promoters of the Albuquerque-Magdalena road race on July 4th, had been waiting on Colonel Sellers to complete details of the race at the Magdalena end. Mr. Leonard was advised today, however, that Magdalena had become weary waiting for Colonel Sellers and had buttoned up that end of the road race arrangements without his expert help. Timers, starters, guards, etc., the telephone message said, had been agreed on and the names mailed. Mr. Leonard expects to be able to announce them tomorrow.

FITZGERALD TURNS DEAF EAR TO THE LADIES

New York Congressmen and Five Associates Wouldn't Even Raise Their Hats to 'Frisco Suffragists.

[By Evening Herald Press Wire]
San Francisco, June 17.—A delegation of 25 suffragists who called today, it is said upon invitation of Representative Frank Mondell of Wyoming, to ask a three-minute hearing from nine members of congressional appropriation committees, were refused audience in a hotel here today by Representative J. J. Fitzgerald of New York.

Six of the nine congressmen, a statement issued by the women said, "rushed by them without even lifting their hats."

In the party were Mrs. Jesse D. Hampton and Mrs. Doris Stevens of New York.

"We are here for a purpose," Mr. Fitzgerald said later, "if we allow ourselves to be interrupted to listen to other causes we will get nowhere."

The women, it was learned, appeared at the opening of a hearing on reclamation and were excluded. They waited for the congressmen outside the doors and renewed their pleas to those who would listen.

ANOTHER GOVERNOR CAPTIVATED BY ALBUQUERQUE

Whitman Becomes Enthusiastic Over City After Sightseeing Trip; Supports Wilson Foreign Policy.

Gov. Charles E. Whitman of New York viewed Albuquerque today and went away an enthusiastic admirer of the "Jugger Little City in the United States." The governor, with the party that accompanied him to the San Francisco and San Diego exhibitions, arrived on a special train enroute at 9 o'clock, and a committee representing the Commercial club took him for a sightseeing trip.

"A splendid little city," said the governor after the trip. "The finest of its size I have ever seen. I wish I could spend the whole day here."

Of the southwest in general the governor said he never realized what the section had accomplished in development and what it promised until he saw it. He was tremendously impressed, he said, with the wonderful prospects of the west.

The governor made it plain in the course of conversation that he is a great admirer of President Wilson personally.

"We all stand back of the president at this time," he said earnestly. "But next year," he added with a smile, "we will elect even a better man."

The governor might have blushed when he said that if he had known what moved Judge Edward A. Mann and Col. M. L. Stern to join the welcoming delegation.

"We've come," said Judge Mann, "to see if we can support the governor for president next year."

The gubernatorial party was met on its arrival, besides those already named, by State Treasurer O. N. Marron, Francis E. Wood, George M. Klock, Max Nordhaus, A. B. McMillen and other prominent Albuquerqueans. The sightseeing trip included the university, the Indian school, Old Town and a run across the river Governor Whitman rode in Mr. Nordhaus' car.

Accompanying the governor on the trip are members of his staff and Speaker Thaddeus Sweet, of the New York assembly. Executive Auditor George Glynn, and Commissioner Yale, representing New York on the Panama-Pacific exposition board. Mrs. Whitman is among the party.

The New Yorkers go from here to Denver, back to Colorado Springs and thence east. They will not stop at Santa Fe.

Tolstol's Son War Prisoner.
Vienna, June 17.—One of the most distinguished prisoners of war captured by the Austrian and Hungarian forces is a son of the late Count Tolstol, who was taken in the Carpathians recently, escaped, and now has been retaken.

Young Count Tolstol was placed in a prison camp at Milovic in Bohemia, but with his companions managed to tunnel his way out. He got as far as Trieste, where he was recognized and seized. The tunnel through which he escaped was about 12 yards long, and was dug almost under the eyes of the guards, from a room to a point outside the wall.

Tolstol is one of a number of brothers who took the field for Russia, notwithstanding their father's well-known hatred of war and opposition to an alliance with France as likely to bring about a conflict sooner or later.

CAMPER WITH CAR IS ACCUSED OF PETTY THEFT

Leo Bailey Arrested and Identified as Man Who Sold Clothes from Ranch of Dr. Ames.

Under examination by Chief McMillin this afternoon Leo Bailey admitted that he stole the clothes taken from Dr. Ames' ranch this week. Just before that Chief McMillin had brought to his office Florence Maxwell, who arrived here this morning from El Paso, Tex. She said Bailey sent her money to come here, using the name Ed Maxwell. Bailey is said to have admitted sending money to the woman, but says he intended merely to help her regain her husband. The woman was detained this afternoon pending investigation of possible other angles to the case.

With the arrest today of Leo Bailey, who is supposed to have come here from El Paso within the past week, the police believe they got the man who stole an overcoat and a suit from Dr. Ames, who conducts a ranch near the Harelas bridge.

Bailey was identified by a second-hand dealer from whom the police recovered the clothes after the robbery was reported two days ago. He was confronted by the dealer after the arrest, and the latter said he was the man who sold the clothes.

Chief of Police McMillin got on Bailey's trail yesterday. Bailey was camped along the river. Today when he came into town the chief arrested him. The identification followed.

The police learned when the robbery was reported that a man in an automobile drove to two other second-hand dealers besides the one who bought Dr. Ames' clothes with garments to sell. Bailey is said to have a car at one of the local garages. It carries a Texas license.

HUNING HAS QUEER GANG AT WORK ON THE ROAD

Heterogeneous might be applied to the crew now endeavoring to improve the county roads under the direction of Leonardo Hunick, and engaged at present on Mountain Road. Men from all conditions and walks of life have elected to work two days on the road in preference to paying the $2.00 specified by law as an alternative. Indeed, some fine applicants who were on hand early this morning gave the impression of being more used to welding a braze on the links or man-aging the steering wheel of a 1915 "Fliver" than dillying with road implements.

Everybody was good natured and cheerful about the work and the scene at dinner time took on the aspect of a picnic. One gentleman remarked that he hadn't had so much fun since he played hooky and went swimming and another caused no end of amusement by his queer antics with the pick and shovel.

Hugh F. Waters, road tax collector, says he has a good many men apply to work out their tax but even a larger number of delinquents in a rush to pay the $2.00 and avoid additional costs.

LABORER SHOT AT GALLUP DIES IN HOSPITAL

Cervantes Loses Race With Death from Carbon City; Chip of Wood Leads to Alleged Murder.

His left leg torn to shreds by a charge from a shotgun, Paulino Cervantes, a Santa Fe laborer at Gallup, died here this morning at the Santa Fe Coast Lines hospital. According to the account of the shooting brought here by Dr. J. W. Fleming, of Gallup, who accompanied the wounded laborer to this city, a chip of wood led to the killing.

Cervantes was chopping wood for the railroad at the storehouse in Gallup last evening, when, it is alleged, a colored boy lying near annoyed him in some way. He picked up a chip of wood from among the pile scattered by his axe and threw it at the boy. It is said.

The boy's mother, it is alleged, saw the act and presumably went into the house to tell her husband. It is alleged that the boy's father rushed out of the house, with a shotgun and fired at Cervantes.

The full charge struck the laborer in the leg, tearing the limb almost off. Cervantes was cared for as far as possible in Gallup, but it was realized early that his only chance lay in an operation at the Coast Lines hospital here, and he was put aboard train No. 10, with Dr. Fleming in care of him.

It was a bare chance at best, and he was dying when the train arrived here this morning. There was a hurried ambulance trip to the hospital, but it was too late to operate and Cervantes died about an hour after reaching the institution.

The negro who is alleged to have done the shooting is said to be under arrest in Gallup.
